

OneSource Building Technologies, Inc. Announces Financial Software Upgrade

OneSource Building Technologies Launches Microsoft Dynamics GP to Support Diverse Operational and Financial Reporting

HOUSTON, TX. Oct 11, 2010 -- OneSource Building Technologies, Inc. (OSBT) successfully launches Microsoft Dynamics GP software. Microsoft Dynamics is a line of easy-to-use, integrated and adaptable ERP and CRM applications that enable business decision-makers to quickly respond to market shifts, take advantage of new trends, increase their competitive edge and drive business success.

“Spring-boarding from our acquisition announcement in July, we had a short time window to move our data to a proprietary platform robust enough to support our diverse operational and financial reporting requirements,” says Bruce Davis, President and CEO of OSBT. “Microsoft Dynamics GP proved to be the most practical and functional option. Our finance and operations teams lead by our Controller, Linda LeBlanc, and Vice President Jack Lucier, worked with our consultants, NexTec Group, to define the requirements and launch the platform in less than 90 days.”

“I needed to make sure that ease of use and reducing cycle time for my staff were key requirements in the RFI”, says LeBlanc. “We needed a system that would integrate the idiosyncrasies of our business to make us more productive while continuing to meet our customers invoice requirements.”

NexTec Group’s General Manger, Chuck Oliver stated “Microsoft Dynamics GP is a business management solution that helps to automate business processes and provides for dramatically improved financial and supply chain management. Microsoft Dynamics GP was an ideal solution for OneSource, giving them the functionality needed for their current processes, as well as what they will need for their continued growth. Additionally, the Microsoft Dynamics GP solution proved to be easily adopted by the end users, which was critical to the success of rolling the product out in under 90 days.”
